

Local Visit to Abberley Hall

On Wednesday, 13th June 24 Society members visited Abberley Hall, near Great Witley. It was a fascinating afternoon. The Hall, which became a school in 1916, was built in 1844-5 for a wealthy Birmingham banker and it was surprising how much of the original rich furnishing and décor remained in the ground floor rooms. The most exciting part of the trip was climbing the 166 steps to the viewing platform at the top to the astonishing Gothic-styled clock tower. The views were incredible. Jo Roach, our guide, was enthusiastic, knowledgeable and welcoming.
